The Passing of Summer

"The melancholy days are here, the saddest of the year," but to many they usher in a season which might most appropriately be termed the "gladdest of the year": the season of social festivities, balls, parties, etc.

To us it means the arrival of the "Dress Suit Season," and, by the way, speaking of dress suits reminds us: Our facilities for catering to this most important branch of the trade have never been better. We have imported this season a rich range of the most select and correct "full dress" fabrics. We make it a point to intrust this class of work to only the most competent workmen, consequently we produce garments which are in every sense of the word "high class;" faultless in fit, in appearance graceful and elegant.

Are You

Not in the wild western sense, but in the sense of having tender feet. If you are, we want to fit your next pair of Shoes for you. There's a great deal in the way a shoe is first put on and the way the foot settles into it. If it's tight where it should be and loose where it should be, there'll be very little trouble We make a study of these things. Prices? Of course they're right or we would not sell so many Shoes.

CHINA'S INTERNAL TROUBLES

British Government Taking Steps to Protect British Residents of China.

London, Oct. 3.—A Shanghai dispatch says: The Hokeo province has been depleted of troops by the viceroy, and the rebellion is causing the construction of fortifications at Woo Chang. The British general advises that all women and children be sent to places of safety.

The British minister at Pekin has asked the foreign office to take steps to protect the lives of British residents in Pekin and Tientsin.

The foreign secretary is in communication with the Indian government with a view of making drafts on the English now serving in India for the purpose of strengthening their posts in China in anticipation of an uprising of the natives.

The general whose soldiers murdered the Scotch missionary James Wylie in Sing Yang has been promoted to be a general commanding Tartar troops in the Fuh Kien province.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Herald has the following special from Shanghai: "It is reported that the Japanese have captured Kin Lien Cheng, on the eastern side of the Yalu river, nearly opposite Wiju. A hundred and fifty thousand men have been gathered at Pekin for the defence of the city but of this number only seven thousand are effectively armed. Only fifty thousand soldiers are available for the defence of the province of Chi Li, that of Li Hung Chang, and these are raw levies. A Japanese army has landed to the north of the Yellow, or Ho Hang Ho river, in the southern part of the Gulf of Pechili to intercept the transport of troops from the south via the Grand Canal to Tientsin. A Japanese fleet of seventeen ships is now blockading the Gulf of Pechili. Prince Kung is favorable to foreigners and the western development of the Chinese empire. French troops are massing in Tonquin."

Cabinet Meetings to be Held Concurrently in London and Paris.

The Differences Between the Two Powers to be Dealt With To-Morrow.

Paris, Oct. 3.—The French cabinet has been summoned to meet concurrently with the British ministerial council to-morrow. The Figaro, referring to affairs in Madagascar, says the Hovas alone are opposed to the control of the island by the French. The Malin says the relations between France and Great Britain were never more tranquil. No dispute over Madagascar is possible. Le Journal says unless the Hovas satisfy the demand made upon them the French government will adopt vigorous measures.

London, Oct. 3.—The Pall Mall Gazette says the meeting of the French and English cabinets has been called for the same date possibly to consider mutual proposals for the settlement of differences existing between the two nations. The Globe assigns the condition of affairs in Madagascar and the grievances of England regarding Egypt as the cause of the meetings. The Westminster Gazette says: According to the Salisbury treaty of 1890 the French have a right to a protectorate over Madagascar, but a protectorate is different from a complete and effective occupation.

Belfast, Oct. 3.—Lord Dufferin, British ambassador to France, who is spending his vacation here, was interviewed to-day. He said he was prepared to be recalled at any moment, nevertheless there was no reason for immediate alarm in the relations between Great Britain and France.

IN MADAGASCAR.

France Will not be Permitted to Annex That Country.

London, Oct. 3.—Advices from Port Louis announce the blockade of the ports of Madagascar. Instructions have been given to protect the French inhabitants in event of hostilities occurring.

Some Englishmen, who hold large mining, agricultural and forest concessions in Madagascar sent a letter yesterday to the Hova premier announcing that, conjointly with certain London and continental banks, they will soon send to London a large amount of money to be used for commercial purposes. The letter says that France will not be permitted to annex Madagascar.

AINSDALE IN TROUBLE.

London, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from Fayal, Azore islands, says that the British ship Ainsdale, from Tacoma for Queenstown, has put into that port for medical assistance, having encountered heavy gales, during which one seaman was seriously injured and four washed overboard and drowned.

PRESENT DAY PIRATES.

Gold Miners Plundered and Murdered in Brazil.

New York, Oct. 3.—Additional advices were received yesterday by the steamer Madiana which arrived from West Indian ports, regarding the gold fever in the disputed country between Brazil and French Guiana. The colonists in the latter province are on a hunt for gold and there are thousands of pirates and freebooters waiting for them to find it and ready to rob them of it. The government of French Guiana is powerless to protect them because of the international dispute over the country. Already the pirates have begun their work according to the news received. Several expeditions have left for the gold fields from French Martinique and [illegible] days' sail north of Guiana. The first expedition which left Guadaloupe was conducted by Messrs. Deroment Biroc and Langellier, who took three negro servants with them. When they reached the gold country their vessel was attacked by the pirates and Langelier and the three negroes were killed. The other two managed to escape with their lives. Another expedition from Martinique met with a similar disaster. This party was returning from the gold country when it was attacked and all its possessions and whatever gold it had was stolen by the pirates, who also took the vessel. The party had to journey back to Cayenne on foot and it was only after a month of hardships and suffering, traversing the forests and swamps, that they arrived in a horrible condition. M. Pierre, head of the surveying bureau at Cayenne, left there for "El Dorado" weeks ago and has not been heard from since. The governor and his friends are anxious about the fate of M. Herald. In the meantime the French troops and gunboats are waiting for word from the the freebooters.

THE CZAR'S CONDITION.

His Death Can Be Delayed but a Few Months.

London, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Standard from Berlin states that Professor Leyden has returned to that city and expressed himself regarding the czar's conditon as decidedly unfavorable to the imperial patient. Dr. Leyden thinks his majesty may possibly recover if he is kept in good spirits and his strength is maintained. Professor Leyden diagnosed the czar's ailment as Bright's disease in an advanced stage.

On the other hand the Vienna Tagblatt maintains, on the authority of a Russian diplomat, that the czar is suffering from neurasthenia, coupled with anaemia in addition to kidney disease. The czar's condition, it is said, was made worse by a cold, which he caught two nights before leaving St. Petersburg. He went to the telegraph office in the winter palace at 1 o'clock in the morning and dictated a message to Abbas Tuman in the Caucasus concerning the health of his favorite son, George, and waited an hour and a half in the dark, bare office for a reply from the doctor. He was not satisfied with the reply, and returning to his bedroom threw himself into an arm chair and wept. He cried, "Oh, God, what have I done to be so severely punished?" The czar could not sleep through thinking of his son George. During the first night of his stay in George's residence in Spala the czar arose from his bed, went to his son's room and watched his sleeping son for a longtime. When returning to his room he went through a cold passage and was attacked with rheumatism, which made his condition still worse. It is said that he greatly prefers George to the czareovitch.

The czar, the czarina, the czareovitch, Grand Dukes George and Michael, Grand Duchess Olga and Prince Nicolas of Greece left Spala yesterday for Livadia, in the Crimea, where it is expected that the czar will stand a better chance of improving his health.

Advices received by great financial houses in London are understood to confirm the worst news concerning the conditon of the czar of Russia. His majesty's conditon is said to be hopeless and his death can be delayed but a few months. The general opinion in this city coincides with that expressed in Paris and Berlin to the effect that the accession to the throne of the czareovitch will result in depriving France of a friend. Persons closely associated with the czareovitch believe that when he ascends the throne he will materially alter the policy pursued by his father and will cultivate cordial relations with England and Germany and hold aloof from France.

The fluctuation in the price of French rentes during the week is attributed to the impression that the czar's death would cause a tremendous fall in prices.

THE FATHERLAND.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—The opposition press were never more active than now in inventing stories representing a rupture between the emperor and Chancellor von Caprivi. This time it is alleged that the kaiser has had a difference with the chancellor over the measure of repression which it is proposed by his majesty to have introduced in the reichstag during the coming session of that body. According to the Hamburger Nachrichten the government will passively resist the desires of the kaiser in this matter, hoping that a reaction will occur which will bear them out in their opposition, both as regards the renewal of exceptional laws and in the framing of a Polish policy.

At the meeting of the Prussian cabinet, over which Count von Eulenberg presided, last Wednesday, it is understood that a majority of the members present insisted upon the adoption of severe methods of repression, which can be supplied through amendments to the code.

A congress of German naturalists and physicians opened its sessions in Vienna on Monday last and closed their proceedings on Friday. The chief topic of discussion by the congress was the discovery by Professor Behring of Halle of a cure for diphtheria by the inoculation of the patient with blood serum. Professor Behring in an interview with a newspaper correspondent said it was his belief that his discovery would eventually be applied as a cure for typhus fever, cholera and pneumonia. He contended that inoculation for diphtheria ought to be as compulsory as the measures which are adopted for the treatment of smallpox. During the debate on the subject [illegible] Professor Ehrlich of Berlin stated his blief that the milk of inoculated animals would tend to assist in effecting cures. In support of Professor Behring's idea he held that blood serum was as powerful against diphtheria as vaccine is against smallpox. The present expense of procuring the blood serum puts it beyond the reach of most persons, as it is manufactured only in two places in Germany. Two injections of the remedy cost thirty marks, and as many cases require six the costliness of the treatment may readily be seen.

A supposed anarchist murder has been committed in Munich. A watchmaker named Huber was found dead yesterday in a house, stabbed to the heart and his throat cut. Huber kept lodgers, and among them was a commissary of police named Fhromander. The latter had made himself very obnoxious to the anarchists by shadowing and arresting a number of them. Huber was found dead in the commissary's room, and it is supposed that he was mistaken for Frohmander. A number of arrests have been made, but the police are not yet certain that they have the right men.

An enormous sensation has been created by the arrest of 183 non-commissioned officers of [illegible] school in Invalid strasse, who, contrary to the rules, had maintained regular students' unions and had edited a "Beer Gazette," in which various officers and institutions were lampooned. A number of the seditious papers were seized. The accused officers had boycotted the training school as much as they could, eating there because they were forced to do so, but never drinking there. They usually met in the back part of a beer house, where they drank beer and sang seditious songs. The authorities see no ground for believing that the secret explosives factry which the prisoners are charged with conducting had any connection with an anarchist movement. The prisoners belong to an upper class in the training school. None of the members of the school who entered in August are implicated in the charges.

The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News, referring to the arrests in the training school, says that the major commanding the school is a severe and unpopular officer and that insubordination has been growing in the school for some time.

On Saturday the major ordered the men to stop their noisy singing and drinking, whereupon the men became insolent and refused to obey the major. They were therefore detained in their rooms and the major telegraphed the fact to the emperor, who telegraphed back that they should be arrested immediately. The foot guards were called up at once and placed around the school and the arrests were made during the night.

PEARY'S VERSION.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—The following letter from Lieut. Peary was received by General Isaac J. Wistar, president of the academy of natural science:

Anniversary Lodge, Greenland, Aug. 15.—My Dear General,—I do not think you can appreciate the intensity of my feelings of regret that I am unable as yet to write you of the successful completion of my proposed work in this region. I was forced back from my attempt to cross the island ice to Independence bay this spring by the extraordinary severity of the weather on the ice cap, which not only interfered with my advance by keeping me storm bound in my tent a large portion of the time, but also practically destroyed my pack of dogs, freezing some of them to death, cutting down the efficiency of others, and finally introducing in my pack the "pibloto," or dog madness of this region. I shall make another attempt with one or two members of my party who decline to desert me, and have confidence that I shall yet win. The following figures will give an idea of what my party endured on the ice cap this spring:

Average temperature for 48 days, 31.5 degrees Fahrenheit; average hourly wind velocity for 49 days, 15.9 miles. In one storm of three days' duration the party was exposed for 34 hours to an average temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit, with a minimum of 62 degrees Fahrenheit, the average wind velocity for the the same time being 4.1 miles. Yet in spite of this the party not only survived, but came through without permanent injury. The experience of the journey has shown me that my ideas of the inland ice of northern Greenland are correct, and that on my proposed route, after surmounting the slope of the ice immediately adjacent to the Whale sound I shall have a level road until I begin the descent of Independence bay. I also know that the human animal can be so clothed and fed as to be unaffected by any degree of cold. What I need now is an exhaustive study of the Eskimo dog and his needs under the most trying circumstances. The coming winter will give me the opportunity for such study. In my next year's work I shall utilize my faithful friends and allies, the Eskimo, and with their assistance shall have a strong, efficient working force.

You may rest assured that I shall not return until I have done everything that it is possible for one to do whose believes in ultimate success and whose every fibre is in sympathy and is straining for the desired end. Very sincerely,

R. E. PEARY,
Civil Engineer, U.S.N.

AMERICAN CATHOLICS.

Pope Preparing a Document Respecting Catholics in the States.

New York, Oct. 2.—A dispatch to the World from Rome says: A high ecclesiastical dignitary was seen to-day with regard to the expected changes in the administration of the Catholic church in the United States. He said:

"It is quite true the pope is preparing a document concerning the United States. This document will deal with the general position of the church in the [illegible] Washington City delegation. Instead of passing through the intermediary of the prefect of the propaganda, Mgr. Satolli would refer matters to the pope direct. The question is one of form rather than of substance, especially as the pope has already authorized Mgr. Satolli to judge in a large number of cases which formerly would have had to be submitted to the propaganda. As to assuming as Mgr. Kean says, that the pope will transfer the administration of the American church to Washington City, the idea is absurd. The situation may be summed up in these terms: The pope wishes to maintain and strengthen the delegation, but Mgr. Satolli will certainly be recalled."

NOT SO OUTRAGEOUS.

Some of the Banished Better Without a Trial.

New Orleans, Oct. 2.—The Times-Democrat special correspondent at Bluefields, under date of Sept. 14, writes as follows: "Since my last letter nothing has created a ripple except the Managua dispatches to the New York Herald which were received here a few days ago. In them it was stated that Mr. Baker had made a vigorous demand that the banished Americans be brought back to Bluefields and be given a fair and impartial trial. On the same day the British gunboat Mohawk arrived off Bluefields with the banished English and Americans and none of them were allowed to come ashore. The two Americans, Champlain and Wiltbank, were put on board the United States steamer Marblehead, and the Englishmen were carried by the Mohawk to Jamaica. So it seems that the protest of Mr. Baker did not amount to much. Probably it is best that it did not, for if all the rumors I hear on the streets have any truth in them it is far better for some of the banished not to risk a fair trial of the charges against them."

Since my advent here on the second instant, no arrests have been made, nor has anyone been oppressed in any way. On the contrary, on the 11th instant, an election was held here for alcalde, four councilmen and a justice of the peace. It resulted in the election of J. Weinberger, alcalde; Dr. Paul Osterhut, Eugene Landry, Samuel Weil and Simon Cohen, councilmen, all Americans, and Robert Sheppard, justice of the peace, a Colombian. From the result of this election it can be plainly seen that the Americans here are in no great danger at present, anything to the contrary notwithstanding. What may come hereafter remains to be seen, as decrees are numerous, as witness the following, dated the 12th:

"'I, Jose Madrid, special commissioner of the supreme government to the Atlantic coast, considering it necessary to regulate the display of foreign flags to avoid the committal of any offense against them and that no abuse should be made of that emblem of sovereignty of friendly nations, in virtue of authority in me vested do decree:

"Article 1. The hoisting of foreign flags on private offices in this city is prohibited.'"

Commissioner Madrid has also issued a decree prohibiting the importation of firearms and ammunition. The British subjects, alias Mosquitoans, still continue to leave Bluefields for Jamaica and Grand Cayman, some 40 or 50 having departed on the 11th instant. One hundred soldiers of the Nicaraguan army also departed from Bluefields a few days ago for Managua."

THE EASTERN WAR.

Japs Meeting Little Opposition—The Ill Provided Chinese.

London, Oct. 2.—A dispatch from Shanghai to the Central News says the Japanese have occupied Wiju without meeting with any opposition on the part of the Chinese troops. Friction between Prince Kung, the emperor's appointee to the presidency of the Tsuig Li Yamen (the foreign board) and Li Hung Chang, the dispatch says, is inevitable. The viceroy is certain to be hampered in the conduct of operations against the Japanese. The imperial council is completely disorganized and the corruption which has prevailed in the commissary department for years, has left the troops with no suitable clothing and a scanty supply of food.

Cannon, rifles and other munitions of war, which from time to time were alleged to have been bought and paid for, cannot be found. Presumably the money represented to have been expended for them was appropriated by the officials, into whose hands it was entrusted.

The country between Tientsin and Taku is flooded with raw levies of troops who are without arms and ammunition and without sufficient clothing to cover them. Disorder in the camps is rampant, there being not the slightest degree of discipline. Executions take place daily, the merest infraction of rule or law being punishable by the loss of the offender's head. European residents of China are taking refuge in the treaty ports under the protection of the warships of their respective countries. A large number of Chinese merchants are also seeking safety in flight, their goods are being seized, and in many cases men of large means have been plundered of every vestige of property they possessed and beaten and otherwise maltreated if they protested. Most of these have also made their way to the treaty ports. Troops stationed at Canton have been ordered to Formosa.

Edward Reed, M. P., in an interview to-day gave to a representative of the United Press an outline of a conversation he recently had with the emperor of Germany on the subject of the war between China and Japan. The emperor, Mr. Reed said, expressed clear and pronounced views on the situation, which have been remarkably fulfilled through the results at Yalu. His majesty recognized the value of strong armor and particularly dwelt upon the efficacy of an armor belt virtually reaching from stem to stern, but he emphasized his opinion that it was of the utmost importance to the vessel in action that she should be given the greatest possible scope of gun fire. The emperor at the time of his interview with Mr. Reed, gave to that gentleman a portrait of himself with his signature endorsed on the back. Preceding the imperial signature were words of this import: "In the modern battleships the distribution of weight necessitates a compromise between armor and artillery. Give her a full, all around belt and after that always decide in favor of artillery."

Mr. Reed expressed his opinion that the Yalu battle was remarkable for its emphasis for the value of speed and armament, multiplied by the quick-firing gun.

THE BARREN LANDS.

Mr. Malterner, of Spokane, Wash., returned from his trip to the Barren Lands on Friday night. He left Edmonton on April 28th with Mr. Burrell, a companion hunter and explorer, also from Spokane. They took with them two excellent canoes and provisions for six months, together with other necessaries for the journey. In passing over the seventy miles of rapids on the Athabasca river betwen the Landing and Fort Chipwyan, the canoe in which Mr. Burrell was seated capsized. Several articles belonging to Mr. Malterner was lost, as indeed were most of the provisions and camping paraphernalia. The canoe was so hopelessly wrecked as to compel Mr. Burrell to return after proceeding as far as Fort Chipwyan, which fort was reached with difficulty. Mr. Malterner continued by canoe to Fort Resolution on Great Slave lake, and here took an Indian guide to the Barren Lands, the home of the musk [illegible]

The Barren Lands are about 250 miles from Fort Resolution. About 100 miles further, at a lake called Clinton Golden, the musk oxen are to be found.

At Lockhart Portage, Gordon Cummings and Harry Munn, hearing that a white man was to follow in their direction, left a letter directing Malterner to press on and overtake them. Mr. Malterner received the letter three days afterwards, but not knowing Gordon Cummings, thought he might be an explorer or miner, little thinking that he was on a similar trip as himself. When last seen Gordon Cummings was wearing a shoe on one foot and a moccasin on the other.

On arriving at McLeod's lake, June 28th, they were stopped by ice and were obliged to wait ten days until the ice broke up. They then crossed the portage that goes into Artillery lake, and here, on the 17th day of July, they came across ice, very strong, some of it still covered with white snow. They continued on to the west side of Artillery lake, where there is a little timber, and continued on till they came to Gordon Cummings' party's boat, which was tied up where the party had set out on their inland trip. The Cummings party had rations for about two months, but it is not likely that they would risk being away from their boat more than six weeks, as there is no possibility of getting food when the supply taken runs out. More or less delay is apt to occur from unforeseen circumstances, and every allowance for such must be made.

Mr. Malterner here found that the delay caused by the ice and the supplies running short would not permit him to travel one hundred miles into the Barren Lands with safety. He, with his Indian guide, therefore returned.

He described the Barren Lands as exceedingly rocky and very difficult to travel in. The rocks and ground are covered with lichen, which when dry is hard and as beautiful as corral, but when wet is quite soft and sponge like. This moss is the food of the reindeer or caribou and is the source of numbers of mosquitoes and flies.

The deer had evidently only preceded them a short distance, as several wolves of a grizzly brown color, differing from a timber wolf and coyote, were seen. These wolves follow up the caribou when they go north, and were an indication that the deer were not far away.

Fur bearing animals are exceedingly rare. The beaver is not found much nearer than Fort Resolution district, the wood buffalo lives in a southwesterly direction, and bears are very seldom seen. On July 16 a large bear was killed with fur in perfect season and just as bruin had come out of his winter quarters. Mr. Malterner brought the skin with him, and found it very useful in his after trips to sleep upon. Mr. McKinley, of the Hudson Bay company's store at Fort Resolution, considered the skin a very fine one. The fact of this bear being shot in such a latitude with fur in season on July 14th shows how very long these animals are able to live without food from the time they hibernate in the fall. The only other animal seen up there was the red squirrel, which is seen as far north as there is a spruce tree.

Several ptarmigan were shot in summer plumage, dark brown feathers with white tipped wings. Other birds noticed were loons, of which there were three varieties, a few geese and a very few ducks.

Mr. Malterner left Fort Resolution on July 27th, and passed Nagel and party on their way to Edmonton at Fort Chipwyan on August 8th. He left his outfit with them to bring in their boats and went ahead alone by canoe. He had a difficult journey up the rapids, drawing his canoe by hand up river. He waited three days, hoping that the Nagel party would overtake him, but so far nothing farther has been heard from them. Teams have been sent out to Athabasca landing to bring them in on their arrival there.

The mineralogy of the Barren Lands and the country surrounding it is almost unknown, but Mr. Malterner is not of the opinion that it is rich in minerals. Wherever there were indications he panned for gold, but found none between Grand rapids and Artillery lake. Near Fond du Lac he found large veins of quartz, but so far as he could see none of it was gold bearing. He brought with him copper and iron specimens, which he purposes sending to his brother, an analyst, to be assayed. He thinks there may be a little gold in them. A great deal of mica of good quality, but only in small quantities of about eight inches square, was found in the rocks.—Edmonton Bulletin.

TAX ON RAW MATERIALS.

A large amount of discussion has been caused by the proposal of the Massey-Harris implement company, to locate a branch of their works on the American side—for it seems that nothing more than a branch was contemplated—and even Minister Foster has taken the trouble to attack the figures quoted by Mr. Massey. Mr. L. M. Jones, the general manager of the Harris branch of the business, has been talking to a reporter of the Winnipeg Nor-wester on the subject, and as he gives a clear review of the matter we take the liberty of reproducing his remarks:

"In the first place," remarked the general manager, "it will not affect the works so far as our home trade is concerned; in fact, the establishment of works in the United States, or in any other country, is simply to maintain and still further develop our foreign trade, which is about one half of our present business. There are two principal elements entering into the contemplated movement—the tariff on raw material and freight charges. The company imports large quantities of pig iron, malleable iron, pig iron and steel, the duty on the former being $4.48 per ton and on malleable iron 25 per cent., and these materials cost the company annually a very large sum in addition to what they would if purchased in the United States and used there, exceding annually $100,000. This is an important item in any industrial enterprise, and to effect a saving in the expense of its raw material to sucessfully compete in foreign markets the company must seek to get to the other side of the customs officer. By the establishment of works in the United States the company will also be able to make more advantageous terms for the carrying of their implements to the markets of the world."

Mr. Jones said, in reply to questions of the reporter, that the movement had been under consideration several months. Members of the company waited on the Dominion government asking that they be allowed a rebate on all imported material used in the manufacture of implements for export, but this concession was refused, and as the material could not be purchased as cheaply in Canada there was practically no other alternative than that they should establish works in the United States.

Asked if the lowering of the duty on agricultural implements would have any influence in the reducing of prices, Mr. Jones replied in the negative, adding that no reduction can be made in the price of implements unless raw material can be purchased cheaper, and therefore lower prices can only be obtained by putting the manufacturer of such implements in a position to purchase material at less money.

"Does your company object to the reduction made on agricultural implements?" asked the reporter.

"No," answered the general manager; "we do not object to the reduction, as the tariff duty is now practically down to a revenue tariff basis. But we do object to any reduction on manufactured implements without a corresponding reduction on the material used in the manufacture. Some reductions were made on portions of raw material last session, but the reduction was so slight, and the present duty so high, that it did not practically reduce the price to us.'

Mr. Jones' statements furnish a good illustration of the workings of the "protective" system. It is a particularly significant fact that though Canadians have been for years taxing themselves severely to "protect" and bonus iron and steel producers, a concern like the Massey company has to go abroad for its supplies in this line. How long is the nursing course to be necessary for this infant industry?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Halifax Chronicle: The evidence of extravagance, waste and corruption on the part of the Tory government, and the proof that it is dominated by the boodle element of the party, are so complete that the people have no recourse but to "turn the rascals out." Mr. Laurier and the Liberals must be afforded an opportunity to give Canada—what it has not had for sixteen years—a clean, reputable and efficient administration. If they fail they will have to suffer the consequences. If any Liberal politician should turn out to be a boodler of the Langevin, McGreevy, Caron stamp, we venture to say he will not be whitewashed or allowed to sit in the cabinet as an adviser of the Queen's representative. And if the Liberal leaders should surrender to boodling contractors, as the Tory leaders have done, we venture to say the Liberals of Canada will promptly dispense with their services, something the Conservatives have not had the courage to do with their leaders when they surrendered to the boodlers of the party and brought disgrace upon this Canada of ours.

The Montreal Gazette says: "According to British Columbia Conservative papers, while Mr. Laurier was greeted in that province by large audiences and respectfully listened to, he went back without making any evident impression on the public mind." If the Gazette had taken the trouble to make an independent inquiry it would have found that the British Columbia Conservative papers were not speaking the truth.

A TRAP.

To the Editor:—An item in last night's Times, stating that Williamson fell into a hole on Douglas street, I suppose refers to me, and I wish to correct it. The facts are that between 7 and 8 I was going up Douglas street on the sidewalk past the Masonic Hall, and in a straight line on the street crossing of Fisgard street, walked into a hole that is made square across the street crossing, which I deny was properly barricaded or lighted. There was nothing, either lumber or stones, but a clear crossing right into the hole. There was a heap of stones on the right of the crossing, which would lead anyone to think that one hole was there; on the left was a piece of timber running in line of Douglas street and a dim lamp hung about five feet high, so that the bottom of the lamp shaded the light from the hole. There being no electric light in the neighborhood and the lamp placed as it was and nothing across the path, I think it was a trap for anyone to walk into. As to my being seriously hurt I hope it may not turn out so, but falling into a dark, deep hole on to a hard rock gave a severe jerk to my spine, the pain from which compels me to keep in bed.

VISITOR BADLY INJURED.

Otto Olston, one of the visitors from Seattle, this afternoon met with what, it is feared, will prove a fatal accident. He was returning from Esquimalt by street car and while crossing Point Ellice bridge, was struck on the side of the head by one of the iron posts that support the arch over the bridge. He was standing on the car talking to a gentleman and leaned back just as the car reached the post. It struck him just in front of the ear, knocking him down and rendering him unconscious, in which condition he has remained ever since. He was taken to Snotbolt's drug store by Ald. Keith Wilson and other gentlemen, and Drs. Hall and Jones were called. They ordered him removed to St. Joseph's hospital, where he now lies in a very precarious condition.

Mr. Olston is a brother-in-law of John Schram, the hardware merchant of Seattle. That gentleman was telegraphed for and will probably be over on the Rosalie in the morning.

THE SEALING RECORD.

Took 3240 in the Sea and 1320 on the Coast and Has 4560 for the Season.

The sealing schooner Triumph, Capt. Clarence Cox, arrived home from Behring Sea this morning with a phenomenal catch of 4560 skins for the season. Captain Cox has succeeded in smashing all previous records, and has made a mark that will probably never be equalled while the present restrictions on pelagic sealing are in force. The only record approaching her was made by Captain Dan McLean in 1886, when the sealers were not kept 60 miles away from the rookeries by a prohibitive zone. The Triumph had aboard 17 canoes, manned by the pick of the west coast Indians, and for the spring season led all of the coast fleet with 1320 skins. The schooner returned to port when the close season came, refitted and was at Unalaska several days before the season was opened on Aug. 1. She entered the sea and her expert spearsmen began their work. The story of her 40 days' work in the sea is a simple one. Aside from a serious accident to James Gallagher, one of her seamen, little out of the ordinary run happened. The schooner cruised to the south of the Islands, found the seals, remained with them and broke all the great records established in years in a great industry. Her greatest day's killing was 324, and that was one of the three days in which she got 900, two little records that will stand for some time. In the 40 days she took 3240, bringing her total for the season up to 4560, as stated above. She would have remained longer in the sea but for the fact that her supply of salt was running low and the weather was getting too stormy for sealing. On the 19th of September she cleared for home, and a long tedious passage was begun. She got through the pass all right, but could not work to the eastward. Gales and contrary winds were in order. She spent a day and a night in Ahousit, and also went into Clayoquot. Off Clayoquot she spoke the schooner Willard Ainsworth of Seattle from Copper Island, with 1100 for the season, 900 taken in Japanese waters and 200 around Copper Island. The Ainsworth was short of provisions and the Triumph gave her enough to last until she reaches Seattle. Off the Cape there were four sealing schooners behind the Triumph and they will probably be in in the evening. A fifth schooner came up ahead of the Triumph, but during the night the tide carried her on to San Juan Island. If she is destined here she will very probably be here to-night as well.

The Triumph was made fast at Rithet's wharf at 11 o'clock this morning. Captain Cox was heartily congratulated by his friends on the splendid season's work done by the schooner. To a Times man he said that he had little to say, for aside from the good catch, the accident to Seaman Gallagher and the long, tedious cruise home, there was nothing to tell. No one on the schooner, and not even Gallagher himself, knew how the accident happened. He was at the gun alone when shot. The schooner Sapphire was spoken on September 1st with 1500 skins taken in the sea. The Triumph will discharge her skins this afternoon.

THE RING.

CORBETT'S BIG BLUFF.

New Orleans, Oct. 3.—If the fiat of the Olympic club amounts to anything, Robert Fitzsimmons, heretofore champion middleweight, is now champion heavyweight of the world, without having had the trouble of defeating the erstwhile champion, James J. Corbett. The board of directors met last night and formally declared Fitzsimmons champion of the world. They claim to have the right to do this on the grounds that the championship was won and lost in their arena.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—James J. Corbett issued a statement to the public this evening, in which he says that contracts will prevent him from fighting any one before July 1st next. He says he will immedately post $1000 with David Blanchard of Boston as a guarantee of good faith that he will meet all comers for one week after 1st July next. He declares that he will fight one man every night during that week and then retire permanently from the ring. He concludes by saying that he will fight Fitzsimmons first and after him firts come first served, no weight or color barred.

Waterburry, Conn., Oct. 3.—Fitzsimmons, who is playing here, summed up Corbett's latest challenge by saying: "It is a bluff on the face of it, and the work of a bluffer."

THE GUN.

On Monday a couple of well known sportsmen called at a wayside hotel on their way home from Saanich to quench their thirst and talk over the day's sport. While they were thus engaged their wagon was examined and a fine cock pheasant extracted from one of their shooting coats. The trick was "well done" by a "fox-eye" individual, who no doubt will "stew-it" and enjoy his easily captured bird.

A GREAT MINING COUNTRY.

Lazy Men Are Advised to Keep Away From the Yukon Diggings.

Mr. C. Constantine, of the Northwest mounted police, who left here last June for the Yukon river district on business connected with his department, returned to the city yesterday evening on H. M. S. Pheasant. He has been travelling continually since he left here, most of the time with Indians as his companions. Mr. Constantine is not at liberty to speak of the official object of his trip, as he has not yet made a report to his government, but it is understood that a force of mounted police is to be established to maintain order in the wilds of the far northern country. A sergeant went in with Mr. Constantine, who, it is supposed, will organize the force.

In regard to the country, Mr. Constantine says it is a very rough one. Starting from Juneau, he made the first hundred miles up the river in a small steamer, and then walked fifty miles over mountains, of which the country is one vast sea. After this walk a boat was built and 50 miles was covered in this before the first half of the journey was completed.

"There is lots of gold in the Yukon and the tributary streams," he said, "but it is no country for lazy men. If a miner goes there he has to work, and work hard. All his possessions have to be packed in, and it takes one season to get the ground ready for working. There is from one to three feet of moss on the rocks, which has to be removed. When this is done large fires are built to thaw the ground, and then the dirt has to be removed. By the time this is done one season has passed, and the miner has to wait through a long winter before he can get to work and find the gold. There are, however, lots of men doing this, one thousand now being in winter quarters. On the first of July 535 miners had passed Wilson's and Healey's on their way to the mines. Only sixty came out this fall, the rest remaining for the winter. Provisions are dear, and are made dearer by packing, for which 15 cents a pound is charged. From $3 to $5 a day can be made on the bars on the lower Yukon, but that will not pay the men at the present price of provisions. The best diggings are on Miller and Davis creeks, which are partly in American and party in Canadian territory. Rich ground has also been struck on Burt's creek. The amount of gold taken out of the country this year will aggregate $300,000. Four men have each taken out from $10,000 to $12,000, but the average is far below this. Of course at present it is all placer mining, but there is lots of mineral there. The miners, however, cannot afford to work this, as by the time they reach the mines their money and provisions are gone and they have to get immediate returns."

When Mr. Constantine arrived at St. Michael's, at the mouth of the Yukon, the United States steamer Bear was there, and Captain Healy very kindly gave him passage to Ounalaska. At the latter place he found H. M. S. Pheasant, and was the guest of the captain to Victoria. The trip down was a very pleasant and uneventful one. James Gallagher, of the sealing schooner Triumph, who was seriously injured by the explosion of a gun, came down on the Pheasant, having been made comfortable by the ship's doctor. A number of schooners were sighted on their way home and in Behring sea the whaling bark Mars of San Francisco was spoken. She had taken twelve whales, and reported the cruise a successful one.

DISTRICT LODGE, A. O. F.

A Successful Business Session Closed With a Banquet.

The district lodge meeting of the Ancient Order of Foresters closed last night with a banquet at the Hotel Victoria. The latter affair was given by the local courts to the visiting delegates, and was a fitting termination of a very successful gathering. The session of the lodge yesterday was held in Foresters' hall, Government street, and the following courts were represnted: Vancouver, Northern Light and Robin Hood of Victoria; Pacific and Beaver of Vancouver; Nanaimo Foresters' Home of Nanaimo; Lord Dufferin of Westminster and Hon. Robert Dunsmuir of Wellington. R. McBride of New Westminster, district chief ranger, presided, and during the day a number of matters of interest to the order and of a routine nature were disposed of. The election of officers resulted as follows:

At the banquet at the Hotel Victoria last evening there were fully sixty at table. District Chief Ranger Hilbert presided, seated at the head of the horse shoe shaped table. At his right sat Mr. McBride and at his left E. J. Salmon. At the ends of the table sat W. G. Cameron and Harry L. Salmon. The table was tastefully arranged and neatly decorated and the menu was excellent. The general toast list of the evening was as follows: The Queen, our Patroness; the Governor-General and Our Sister the Countess of Aberdeen; the Army, Navy and Volunteers; the Dominion and provincial legislatures; the Mayor and Corporation; the Ancient Order of Foresters; Columbia District; Sister Societies; the Press; the Ladies." The principal speeches of the evening were made by Messrs. Hilbert, Waller, E. J. Salmon, McBride, Cameron, H. L. Salmon, McRae and Cohen. The speeches were all in a happy strain and the company was a merry one.

The order is in a flourishing state and there was room for general congratulation. The following committe is entitled to the greatest credit in connection with the arrangement of the banquet; Messrs. Maynard, Davies, Hall, Hughes, Trace, Turnbull, Callow, Mellor and Boorman.

SERVICE OF SONG.

Last evening, owing to the very unfavorable state of the weather, the attendance at the Reformed Episcopal church was not in keeping with the excellence of the programme furnished by the leader, Wm. Greig, and his capable choir. Those who braved the stormy weather were fully repaid for their temerity. The ceremony commenced with the singing of the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis by the choir, after which a hymn was rendered, the male and female voices blending harmoniously. W. Ralph Higgins, who was accompanied by Mrs. Higgins followed with the aria, "If with all your hearts ye truly seek me," from the Elijah. This tenor solo is one of the most difficult in Mendelssohn's great work, but Mr. Higgins, whose voice is well adapted to oratorio, was perfectly at ease, his pronunciation of the words and interpretation of the work being excellent. The anthem, "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," by the choir, with [illegible] solo, was [illegible] well rendered and produced quite an impression. George Jay is a painstaking singer and rendered the "Plains of Peace" with marked excellence. He always sustains any song he pleases to sing and last evening was no exception with him. "Call to Remembrance" is a very beautiful anthem, and with Miss Mount in the solo the rendering was very finely drawn. The lady's clear soprano notes filled the large edifice. Miss Mount has been greatly missed from musical circles for some time, but her long rest has without doubt added greatly to her powers of singing. She was well sustained in the quartette by Mrs. Helmcken and Messrs. Booth and Brocklehurst. Keith Middleton's organ selections, Handel's "Largo" from "Xerxes," followed by Schumann's Traumerei, were played with much precision and taste. Mr. Middleton is a young aspirant for organ fame, and with careful study will make a brilliant organist. Miss Wey and Miss Devereux both sang well, and taken altogether a more pleasant evening could not have been spent. It is hoped Mr. Greig will see fit to repeat the service of song at some future date.

NOT LIKELY TO COME.

One and Another Find Grave Reasons for Avoiding a Visit to the West.

From our own Correspondent.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Canada's trade returns are not at all satisfactory. Recently the financial returns for the year were given, and the result was to show a heavy deficit. This was up to the close of the last fiscal year, the 30th of June. Since then there has been no appearance of improvement. The trade returns for August have been published in the Canada Gazette of yesterday. There is a terrible falling off in the exports. The total exports for the month were $11,107,892, or a decrease of $2,464,825 over the same month last year. The produce of Canada exported for the month was $10,126,958 and the produce of other countries $980,934. This was a decrease of $1,307,278 in the produce of Canada and $1,157,547 in the produce of other countries exported last month as compared with August, 1893. There was a slight increase in the total imports, caused by the lare increase in coin and bullion, but the duty collected was nearly half a million dollars less than for the month of August, 1893. The outlook is for another heavy deficit this year, no matter how Mr. Foster may do the financing.

As I telegraphed you a few days ago, the trip of the ministers to Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia has been declared off. There was a big row over the matter. It was a sort of three cornered affair. In the first place Mr. Ouimet, minister of public works, was booked along with Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper to join Hon. T. M. Daly at Winnipeg and address a number of meetings all along the line of C. P. R. and its branches until Victoria was reached. That was agreed upon some weks ago. A little later Sir John Thompson and Sir Charles Tupper left for the Maritime Provinces. The latter only stayed a few days. He came back to Ottawa to make arrangements for the western tour. Then came a strong protest from the Northwest as to the sending of Mr. Ouimet out there. The old story of his having fled from the command of his battalion during the Riel rebellion in 1885 was again brought up, and the wisdom of his returning to the Northwest as a cabinet minister after the part he performed there some nine years ago was not only called in question but frowned upon by the Tory contingent in the west. There was therefore nothing for it, as far as Mr. Ouimet was concerned, but to stay at home. He was opposed to going from the first because of the attitude he had taken in Quebec on the school question, which would never do in Manitoba. From the way in which Mr. Laurier had been tackled by the Manitoba Catholic politicians they would require to make some show of meeting Mr. Ouimet and getting some declaration from him.

Well, added to this, came a number of protests from Conservatives in Manitoba as to the manner in which Mr. Daly is attending to matters up there. There is, in fact, the utmost dissatisfaction with the minister of the interior, and it is stated on every hand that he will not have the slightest chance of even reelection himself, far less the carrying of his party at the next general election in that province. It is said that he will seek refuge in a judgeship or some other position as soon as a vacancy is found for him. His name has been mentioned for a judgeship in British Columbia, just as if there were not enough of lawyers in that province capable of being placed on the bench. As to the re-opening of Lisgar, Mr. Daly will not make any direct recommendation to the government. He tells Mr. Ross, for instance, that he willl leave the matter in the hands of the government, but it is said that indirectly he states his opinion is that it will be lost to the government, if the constituency is opened.

When Mr. Ouimet decided not to go west, and when Mr. Daly had everything in Manitoba about as badly mixed as it could be, Sir Hibbert Tupper refused to go west and telegraphed Sir John Thompson to this effect. The premier has therefore had to shorten his holiday in Nova Scotia and is now on his way back to see what can be done in sending out some of his colleagues on the trail of Mr. Laurier.

There is no use of again sending Mr. [illegible] ed farming," and therefore there is no other French minister to make the trip but Sir Adolphe Caron, who has just arrived at Quebec from England. It would seem strange if the postmaster-general were appointed on such a mission along with some of the other English-speaking ministers. No one is better able to explain the true meaning of the word "McGreevyism" in Canadian politics than he. He has already told parliament in the most unblushing way that he would repeat his doings in connection with the Lake St. John railway should an opportunity present itself. A recital of this in the west would be of interest. Sir Adolphe could also tell, if he were disposed, why it has been stated in every case in which he has been interested in the province of Quebec the premier has been compelled to take his view of it. It was thus in the white washing of Mr. Turcotte, who is a henchman of the postmaster-general. Sir Adolphe will not be cast aside because of his political wrongdoings; he is determined that the government who got the benefit of his acts shall suffer along with him.

Outside of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and Mr. Daly there does not appear to be any other member of the cabinet who could go, as repesenting the English-speaking members. Mr. Haggart is no hand on the stump, and Mr. Foster is far from well. It is said that the minister of marine considers that affairs in the west are so mixed up that Sir John Thompson himself ought to make the trip. As representative of the west in the cabinet Mr. Daly of necessity must be one of the party. His political record is that he always puts his foot in it, and that being the case he will do more good to the Liberals by going than staying at home.

The presence of Sir Hibbert in British Columbia would afford him an opportunity of telling the sealers the exact benefits which have accrued from the Paris award. He will also be able to satisfy those interested in the salmon fisheries that he is better able to judge what is for their interests in the way of regulations than they are themselves. There are also a number of other questions, which are of special interest to the people on the coast, and which are under his department, and which the minister will be able, no doubt, to show that he has been acting in the best interests of the people although they have not so far seen it in this light.

If Sir Adolphe Caron has an opportunity of reaching Victoria he will be able to show that he has been always the friend of the letter carriers, although they could not see it that way.

As for the minister of the interior he will have a chance of explaining that the delay in granting titles to certain lands within the railway belt in the province is due to some cause outside that of his department.

When all these troublesome matters have been disposed of the ministers will give any amount of statistics—outside the latest financial and trade returns—to show that the people of Canada are prosperous. All that is wanted is to go into "mixed farming," a panacea which cures all evils affecting the body politic.

During the incoming week it will have to be decided whether there will be a missionary tour or not. The leaders of the party, outside the government say that something must be done. The ministers do not want to undertake the job. What the premier will decide upon will be known shortly. Of the two evils they will probably choose the least and stay at home.

SLABTOWN.

MADAGASCAR'S CRATER LAKE.

A Strange Body of Water and Some Native Superstitions.

Our objective point was Lake Tritriva (pronounced Treetreeva), lying about ten miles west of "At-much-salt," where is situated the sanitorium of the Norwegian (Lutheran) missionary society, at which we were staying while taking a course of baths in the thermal springs, from the nature of which the place derives its name. The sanitorium is situated at an altitude of five thousand feet above the level of the sea, and the easy rising ground over which the latter part of our journey lay took us up a further 500 or 600 feet before we arrived at the foot of Tritriva.

A glance at the hill so named seemed to show that it was one of the extinct volcanoes with which this part of the country abounds, and the volcanic soil and lumps of lava over which we were travelling were a further indication of the same fact. A hill of oval shape, lying nearly north and south, we approached it on the east side, and noticed a ridge about half way up the hill which indicated the position of the crater. Climbing up the ascent we reached this ridge, and a very striking scene lay before us. We found ourselves standing on the rim of the crater, on its hollow side, the ridge curving up and round at either end of the lake till on the opposite side it attained an elevation of perhaps 250 feet above the spot where we stood. This lopsidedness is a characteristic feature of volcanoes in this land, and is attributed to the prevalence of the southeast trade winds, which have driven westward the greater part of the ejected matter.

The ridge on which we were situated was only a few feet wide, and, looking down the precipitous slopes, which formed the inner sides of the crater, we saw, some 200 or 300 feet below us, a small, narrow lake, considerably less than a thousand feet in length, 200 or 300 feet in breadth, and narrowing to a point at either end. The sides are grass covered to within 50 or 60 feet of the water, where the grass terminates on the edges of what appears to be a hole cut clean down through the solid gneiss rock into the earth, the cliffs rising smooth and perpendicular from the water on all sides, with the exception of one point where the water was approachable. It is an awe-inspiring scene, though confined to so small an area. I have seen a few wonderful sights in the different lands where I have traveled, but do not know of any sight that has impressed me quite as this volcanic lake did. Looking down on the green water of the lake, one tries to imagine what the scene was like when turbulent, igneous matter occupied the place where the water now is, and when the character of the district was being altered by the ejections which this and dozens of other craters were vomiting forth. And [illegible] one thinks of the terrific force of the explosion which opened the vent, blowing out a plug of solid rock, as a cork might be blown out of a tin of boiling water, and leaving an opening almost as clean cut as might be made through a cheese with a long sharp knife or scoop.

Making my way carefully down the steep descent—for a false step might send me rolling down to the cliff and over into the water below—I reached the point where the cliff is broken away, so that the water is approachable, my path passing under a overhanging mass of rock which might be a part of the missing portion of the cliff, thrown up there and not entirely buried in the volcanic ejecta. Advancing to the water's edge, I gazed down to see if there was any sign of a bottom, and perhaps, with Sam Weller's extra double-million power magnifying spectacles I might have seen it, but ordinary eyes were of no value whatsoever for such a purpose, for standing with my feet almost touching the water, I might drop a sounding line plumb down, and a hundred yards of it would not touch the bottom. Some months ago two Norwegian missionaries measured the depths of the lake, which the natives had hitherto regarded as a kind of bottomless pit connected in some way with the sea. Considering the small superficial area of the lake, its depth is remarkable, being nearly 300 feet at its shallow end and over 480 feet at the deep end. Their manner of taking the soundings may be worth mentioning. While one stood on the edge of the cliff paying out the line, the other swam out on the lake with the weight end of the line, and supported himself in position with a length of bamboo under each arm about six feet long by three inches in diameter, and plugged at the ends.

While sitting at the water's edge I was startled by sounds like the report of a gun, or rather the dull, heavy sound of a cannon fired at a little distance. I soon found that the sounds arose from a very simple cause, nothing more alarming, in fact, than a youth throwing stones from the cliff down into the water. The sound of their impact with the water was astonishing; and it will be readily imagined, from what I have stated as to the conformation of the crater, that the echo from different points was also remarkable.

On our first arrival on the rim of the crater our men evinced no little excitement. "Look, sir, look at the color of the water! Someone has recently been drowned here!" "What has that to do with the color?" I asked. "Oh, it's a sure sign, sir. The water never assumes that bright green but except in token of it having recently received a corpse." My explanation that the bright green was but the reflection of the green grass above was too much commonplace to obtain credence, though after further argument and my pointing to the outline of the crater edge reflected in the water, beyond which the water was dark green, one or two accepted my explanation of the phenomenon, while others stuck to their own belief, "for have we not been often here, and we know it is only drowning that causes such a color."

Coming along the road, I had heard a man telling that how if a person were to throw a piece of pig meat into the water, the latter would burst forth from the hole and drown him, and nothing I could say would shake his conviction. We happened to have some ham with us for lunch, and I wanted the man to try the experiment, promising him £20 if the bacon caused any unusual disturbance in the water; but no, what good would £20 do him if he lost his life! I thought of trying the experiment myself, for the benefit of our men, but did not do so, for they would only attribute the absence of the expected effect to the fact of my being a foreigner, and possessed of some influence strong enough to prevent the water evincing its repugnance to the bacon in the usual forcible manner.

Once upon a time, so the natives firmly believe, a pair of youthful lovers were forbidden to tie the matrimonial knot by their parents respectively. Whereupon, being in great sorrow of mind, they went up to Tritriva lake, and, tying themselves together, jumped into the water and were drowned. But the water pitied and behaved handsomely (for water, that is) toward them, for it converted them into bushes, and there they grow side by side to this day, and moreover, they have borne [illegible] young bush growing alongside of them? And in proof of the veracity of the above, if you should break a twig off either of these bushes, not sap, but blood, will exude therefrom. Away I went, to try the experiment, but my informants were not unanimous as to the identity of the bushes, and in any case they pointed to bushes which it was impossible to reach. But of couse, as these men had come from a place ten miles away their uncertainty would in no way depreciate the trustworthiness of the story.

A useful place is that lake, for more purposes than one. When a lad and a lass think of marrying they go to the lake to ascertain whether the union will be a happy one. Should the water look bright and clear, it is an augury of a happy marriage, but should it present a dark and turbid aspect, the omen is of evil import, and the match must be broken off. I did not ascertain whether the young folks consult the sky before consulting the water. If so, they could easily insure propitious omens. The people from one place likewise consult the lake when anyone is seriously ill. In this case a dark or gloomy appearance portends the death of the patient, while a bright aspect promises his safe recovery. Such a lake would be a fortune for a matrimonial agency, and an undertaker might find it a good business.—Evesham Journal.

The Best Medicine.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

AMERICA'S NAVAL SCHOOL.

Captain Mahan Spoken of as the New Superintendent.

Washington, Oct. 3.—It has been suggested that in view of the indisposition of Admiral Walker to accept the detail of the naval academy, Captain A. T. Mahan, commanding the flagship Chicago, be assigned to the duty. There are a number who advocate Captain Mahan's appointment on the ground that an officer of his reputation in every navy, would give the naval school great prestige and would then be in a position to inculcate into the minds of the cadets the views which he has set forth in his writings upon the influence of sea power on history and the work and value of a navy in asserting a country's power. Objection to the detail comes, however, from officers who believe that Mahan is lacking in executive ability and does not possess the snap and firmness essential in efficient service of the academy. It is understood that both Secretary Herbert and Admiral Ramsay, chief of the detail bureau are rather disinclined to the suggestion of detaching Captain Mahan and ordering him to succeed Captain Pythian for the reason that he has himself said he was not a good "sailorman" and believed that his place was rather in writing naval histories than in commanding warships. Captain Mahan has not applied for the billet, but it is said that he would be pleased with it, as it would afford him ample time to continue his writings, which is impossible on board the Chicago. The delay in appointing someone to relieve Captain Phythian continues to create surprise among naval officers, who insist that the new superintendent should start in with the academic year instead of taking hold when the course is well advanced and no time has been permitted for becoming familiar with the duties of the office. It is being whispered about that the admiral's "pull" still avails and on all sides there is surprise that the secretary permits him to remain in New Hampshire after peremptory orders have been issued detailing him to Annapolis.

CALIFORNIA TRAIN WRECKERS.

Confession That Exonerates the Present Prisoners.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 3.—It has just transpired that William McCullom, an employe of the railway company, confessed last Wednesday to a knowledge of the train wreck last July. His confession implicates two men now in the shops, who came to Sacramento just previous to the strike from Oakland. In an interview to-day McCullom acknowledged that he had made such a confession, but he would not give the names of the men implicated. Incidentally he observes Worden and the others now under arrest at Woodland for the crime.

—In an age of fraud and adulteration, it is certainly gratifying to know that such an extensively-used preparation as Ayer's Sarsaparilla may be implicitly relied upon. It never varies either in quality, appearance, or effect, but is always up to the standard.

THE FALL EXHIBITION.

List of Prizes Awarded—Tug-of-War a Lively Feature Last Night.

Yesterday afternoon and evening there was a good attendance at the fair, when the circumstances are considered. The crowd was an interested one also, as the various criticisms passed on the goods showed. An unfortunate accident occurred in the early part of the day on account of the rain. It seems that the dome of the building under which the band stand is placed was not entirely rain proof, so that when it rained heavily outside there was quite a shower for a time until the timbers closed up naturally from the influence of the water. This did not occur, however, until considerable damage had been done to Mr. F. C. Davidge's superb collection of silks, which had to be removed, thus taking away what was absolutely the richest display in the building.

A very nice exhibit was made by the North American Rent Chair company of Owen Sound, Ont., in the way of chairs of various styles and shapes, and in the same connection there was shown by Mr. J. D. Gordon an improved dining table manufactured by the Knechtel company, the patent being that the table can be extended at will, either one or several leaves, a number of which work on a revolving system, thus doing away with the old fashioned method.

In the arts department on the second floor there is an immense variety to choose from, of various degrees of both excellent and poor qualities. The judges have been very thorough in their examinations, and have sought only to give prizes where there was real merit. They have abstained from giving awards where there was no competition, as such prizes might or might not be merited. It will thus be seen from a comparison of the list with the awards made, allowing for cases of no entry, that there have not been any prizes thrown away.

T. W. Fletcher is also in the music line with several specimens of the well known pianos he carries, while near by Mr. Henry Saunders shows a cabinet of ores from the Alberni mines.

Not by any means the least interesting attraction in this place is a complete model of an engine and boiler, which is to be found next to H. & A. Fox's neat exhibit of cutlery. It was built on board the Premier during the present year by Mr. W. T. Watson, and is as neat and perfect a model as could be wished.

Fruits were judged yesterday, and the results will be found in the prize list following. Perhaps there are not so many varieties, but the quality is as good as in former years, the usual huge and well colored specimens being represented. The flowers have already been alluded to, and the remaining article of interest on this floor not touched upon is the collection of home made breads and dairy produce, of which there is a limited but good display.

The top floor is mainly occupied by a miscellaneous collection of ladies' fancy work, which is collectively a marvel of ingenuity and beauty. The ladies have excelled themselves this year. There is also here a remarkably good exhibit from the Colonist lithographic and fine job printing departments, at the head of which Mr. T. B. McCabe presides so efficiently.

The only new arrivals in the stock yards are the animals owned by Mr. J. T. Wilkinson, of Chilliwack, who loyally refuses to miss showing at a Victoria fair, no matter what the difficulties or expense may be. He was not to be seen himself yesterday, although in town, but he was very ably represented by Mr. William Atkinson, who has charge of the animals. Mr. Wilkinson, who happens to be the only exhibitor of stock from the mainland this year, has on view three horses, a colt and twenty-two sheep of the well known Southdown breed. One of the equines, Sea Bird, is a beautiful standard bred mare (No. 774 in the American trotting register). Her sire was Bookmaker, by Harold; dam Birdie Stanton by General Stanton. She has been trained but very little, yet she gives evidence of great speed. Another mare in the bunch is Nellie Fox, by General Stanton, the champion sire of Canada; dam by Caledonia Chief. She has with her a foal by Harry Prentice, which promises to be exceptionally good in its class. There is also a two year old filly out of Nelly Fox by Erin Chief jr.; it is a [illegible]. The flock of sheep is led by a pedigreed ram, Fraser (50), of very aristocratic lineage. It was bred by John Jackson, of Abingdon, Ont., who for many years has had the best flock in Canada, and carried off the bulk of the prizes for sheep at the World's fair. There is also in the flock another ram of distinguished parentage and registered also in the Canadian register.

It will be seen from the prize list that Mr. Wilkinson has done well with his Southdowns.

Owing to the rain yesterday none of the horses were judged, as the parade was an essential to judging in their case.

The bicycle races, which were put off yesterday on account of the rain, were also seriously interfered with to-day from the same cause.

The judges announced yesterday afternoon that the firemen had captured the prize for illuminations and decorations, but that it was a race between them and the New England hotel.

General interest was shown in the tug-of-war contests yesterday afternoon between the English and Irish and the Scotch and Canadians. In the former the English won a close and well tried contest, and in the latter the braw Scotchmen came out ahead of their Canadian brethren. All four teams were composed of men of splendid physique and appearance. This evening the order will be reversed to the old trial between the Scotch and English, while the Irish and Canadians will try issue on their own account.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat it is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

AMERICA'S DAY.

America's day opened dull and uncompromising, with the wind in the most unpromising quarter, although at intervals there was a tremendous effort made by the sun to break through and smile on the proceedings. The visitors had to wear their rubbers and mackintoshes, which made it more or less uncomfortable to get around. At the fair grounds everything was in readiness to receive them, most of the indoor judging having been completed, and, thanks to the energy and zeal of Mr. Renouf, Mr. Dallain, and assistants, in working late into the small hours of the morning, the cards were placed on the exhibits to show the successful competitors.

Outside all was wet, but during an interval in the rain the judges took an opportunity to proceed with the judging of the horses, but the result has not yet been made known.

Despite the intermittent rain the attendance is very good to-day, and the [illegible] comfortable when things are so cheerless outside.

The New Vancouver coal company have a huge piece of coal in machinery hall, which would make matters comfortable for that section if it were lighted; there are also specimens from the Union and Wellington collieries.

The sports were seriously hindered by the dampness; in fact, the footballers had the option of swimming. The only fixture that kept it appointment was the band, which was always much enjoyed. This evening the tug-of-war contest will commence at eight, and will probably be the only event on the sporting programme that is sure of being held.

To-morrow will be Canada's day, for which the programme is: Lacrosse match, Stars v. Moonlighters of Westminster, for trophy offered by the committee. Grand parade of stock, prize winning animals led by their respective attendants; 8 p. m., international tug-of-war.

VISITORS FROM THE SOUND.

The people of Tacoma have reciprocated for British Columbia day at the Interstate fair. To the number of over two hundred, and headed by Henry E. Bucey, director general of the Interstate [illegible] Mayor Edward S. Orr, City Treasurer D. O. Smith, Judge Harris, president of [illegible] G. E. Cleveland, J. W. Macaulay, Samuel Collyer, Charles Hotchkiss, Mr. Demorest, Mr. Brummer and other prominent citizens of the City of Destiny, they arrived on the City of Kingston last night. They were met at the boat by Mayor Teague and several of the aldermen and a big delegation of the board of trade, and with their wives and families escorted to the Driard. Last evening in honor of the visit there was an informal banquet at the hotel. A. C. Flumerfelt and Dr. G. L. Milne sat at the ends of the table, and ranged on either side were Samuel Collyer, D. O. Smith, Joshua Davies, Mr. Demorest, Gus Leiser, Abe Gross, D. R. Ker, Chas. Hotchkiss, Ald. Wilson, Mayor Orr, H. Croft, J. W. Macaulay, G. E. Cleveland, F. Elworthy, Judge W. H. Harris, Mr. Brummer, A. H. Scaife, Mr. Phillips, Mayor Hoy of Westminster and Henry E. Bucey. During the evening a number of speeches were made. To-day the visitors are being shown about the city and exhibition. There are perhaps two hundred other visitors here from the other sound cities.

Ladies Costumes

Ladies have a great deal of trouble in selecting dress goods. The variety is great. The quality is various and the merit claimed is sometimes more than the possession. When ladies are desirous of obtaining the finest grade of Black Dress Goods, they should ask to see Priestley's dress fabrics. These, as is well known, are the ne plus ultra of durability, beauty and delicacy of texture. They have long been the favorite dress goods of well dressed Englishwomen. The Americans prefer them to French goods. Canadian ladies can obtain them from reliable dealers. Ladies should always ask for Priestley's Dress Goods.
